Faculty Senate to back prof in tenure case

By Rich Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Faculty Senate Tuesday approved a recommendation to become involved in a grievance case which will be appealed to the Board of Trustees.

In a secret-ballot vote, the council decided 18-11 to act in the tenure case of Edwin Pearson, assistant professor in physics and astronomy.

Under the recommendation, the senate—the newly adopted designation for the Faculty Council—will act as a "friend of the court" when Pearson's case is appealed to the trustees. The senate's executive committee will choose a senate member to attend the May board meeting, when Pearson's appeal tentatively is scheduled.

The senate also will send a letter to the board asking for "favorable consideration" of Pearson's appeal.

The recommendation for Faculty Senate involvement was made by faculty members of the faculty status and welfare joint standing committee and was presented by Elizabeth Eames, philosophy professor.

The Pearson case was brought to the senate's attention by a letter from C. Addison Hickman, professor in economics. According to the letter, a report made by the grievance panel, chaired by Hickman, case may have been altered after it was sent to the administration.

"The committee recommendations in the matter were so drastically altered through cumulative administrative interpretation and implementation as to constitute their effective rejection," the letter stated. The committee recommended that tenure be granted Pearson, provided a majority of the tenured faculty members in his department voted in favor of tenure.

Court to hear plea to drop ACLU suits

By Rich Lorenz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Motions by the University to dismiss two suits filed against the Board of Trustees by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) will be heard Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Danville.

The suits were filed by the ACLU on behalf of C. Harvey Gardiner, research professor in history, and Douglas M. Allen, former assistant professor in philosophy.

Giving SIU's rationale for asking dismissal of the suits, John Huffman, SIU legal counsel, said, "In short, they do not state a cause of action."

The Gardiner suit was filed in March, 1972, in East St. Louis by attorney Joseph Cohn, in response to a negative recommendation for a pay raise for Gardiner by then-Chancellor Robert MacVicar. MacVicar said Gardiner, a vocal critic of the Center for Vietnamese Studies, was doing a disservice to SIU.

The suit, based on the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution, asks for $100,000 in punitive damages plus back pay equal to the salary increase that was denied Gardiner.

Allen's suit was filed in August, 1972, in East St. Louis by Cohn. The suit claims Allen was denied tenure because of his criticism of SIU policies and the Center for Vietnamese Studies.

The suit states that Allen was denied his rights of freedom of speech under the First and Fourteenth Amendments, as well as his right to due process under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments. The suit asks for $100,000 in damages and an immediate assurance of tenure by the board.

Currently, Allen is serving as a visiting professor in the Department of Philosophy at Vanderbilt University.

The motions will be heard by Judge Henry Wise, district court judge for the Eastern District of Illinois. Huffman said Wise has been assigned to the case, even though the suits were filed outside of Wise's district, because of the judge selection process.

Allen's charge that he was denied tenure because of his political activities and statements also has been investigated by the American Association of University Professors (AAUP). An AAUP report published two weeks ago said the trustees had violated Allen's academic freedom.

Weak turn-out elects incumbents Fischer, Jones for City Council

By Monroe Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Incumbents Hans Fischer and Archie Jones will sit on the Carbondale City Council for another four years.

Both won seats on the council Tuesday in an election which drew 3,473 total votes.

Fischer led with 1,958 votes and Jones followed with 1,692. Candidates Harberty "Herbie" Beyer and Cleveland Matthews ran a close race and were separated by only three votes. Mrs. Beyer had 1,403 and Matthews had 1,400 votes.

Fischer led in 11 of the 16 precincts and drew a large number of votes from the southwestern section of the city.

Fischer, an architect, said he was happy he won but that he was a little disappointed with the voter turnout.

"In 1969, I won with 1,992 votes. Now, with a greater population and more registered voters, the turn out is a lot less," he said. "So, I am a little disappointed with the turn-out."

Jones, a retired school principal, also drew a large number of votes from the southwestern section of the city but was beaten out in the northeast section of the city by Matthews.

"I was not just counting on precincts 4 and 5 (northeast section) to win the election," Jones said. "I worked hard in other areas."

He said Matthews carried the precincts because Matthews was "born and raised in the area and he knows a lot of people."

"I'm not a born resident, I came to Carbondale in 1955," Jones said. "But, Matthews is a resident here and he's well known."

Jones said he led the 1969 election with 2,300 votes.

"I led in the primary and the general

Hans Fischer

Archie Jones

(1969) election," he said. "I would have been the lead getter in this election had Mr. Matthews and Mr. Loyd Sumner not been running in the primary."

He said he was very proud to have won and that he hopes "to be able to make a better councilman than I have been in the past four years." He added that a councilman should improve as time goes on and that he "will continue to work for all the citizens of Carbondale."

Mrs. Beyer of 117 Pinewood Drive said she was disappointed in the election results, "but I look forward to continuing to work with the planning commission and other city organizations."

Mrs. Beyer led in her own precinct collecting 220 out of 398 votes cast in the 15th precinct located in the Parrish Acres and Emerald Lane section of town in Southwest Carbondale.

Matthews, broadcast engineer for WT U-TV, said he was also disappointted with the election results. He led in precincts 3, 4, 5, and 17.

"I led in these precincts because the people are predominantly students, the elderly in the high-rise and other people who are dissatisfied with the incumbents," he said, adding that he and Mrs. Beyer carried their respective precincts because "the people know we're the best candidates."

He said many of the people voted for the incumbents because they didn't know who to vote for and were "just guessing."

He said he carried the people "who see a need for a change."

Fischer also led in the primary election in February with 1,130 votes and Jones came in second during the primary with 1,075 votes.

Mrs. Beyer placed third with 914 votes and Matthews placed fourth with 724 votes in the primary. Some 2,500 votes were cast in the primary.

Student meat discount runs into legal snag

By Larry A. Glowacki
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A plan to obtain student discounts on meat and gasoline at area stores and service stations has run into a big snag.

Student senators fighting for a pilot program of discounts on meat bought by students have devised a system of reimbursements to merchants which the SIU legal office says is illegal.

Bob Reynolds and Mike LeVault, commuter district senators, have developed the pilot plan for a 10 per cent discount on meats—including fresh and frozen meats, fish and chicken—with Boren's IGA in the Lewis Park Mall.

Students would receive the discount when they purchase meat and the store would keep records of the total amount of discounts per month, LeVault explained.

Student Government would then allocate money from student activity fees to reimburse the store, he said.

Argument over a bill introducing the plan at last week's Student Senate meeting centered around the legality of using student activity fees for this purpose.

LeVault said Richard G. Higgerson from the Office of the University Legal Counsel had told him that using student fees to reimburse a grocer was questionable but was not a cut and dried issue.

LeVault said that in an earlier meeting, Higgerson had told him that the question was "in a gray area" and that the Attorney General of Illinois had refused to give an opinion on the issue in the past.

LeVault added that Higgerson did not tell him at that time the plan was illegal but did say he should come back to the legal office for another conference.

LeVault said he and Reynolds received a letter on April 10 in which Higgerson told them "it is my opinion that such an arrangement would involve an illegal expenditure of public funds."

Emil Spees, dean of student life, said during discussion of the bill in the senate that he believed it was an illegal move and could not be made.

LeVault said he and Reynolds are working with a Carbondale lawyer who is researching the problem. The lawyer says the use of student fees for the purpose of reimbursement to private citizens is in a gray area, that is, it is not a cut and dry issue, LeVault reported.

Reynolds said the big question is whether student activity fees are the property of the students or of the state after they are collected.

Reynolds and LeVault maintain that activity fees belong to the students and that their discount program is in the students' interest.

According to the letter from Higgerson, the reimbursement policy would be an illegal use of "public funds."

Reynolds said debate over this issue would be an excellent opportunity to confront the administration with the possibility of setting a precedent at SIU.

Reynolds said the Legal Office's opinion is baffling because the office ruled in 1970 that Student Government could have legally reimbursed store owners for broken windows after the riots of that year.

It could also be called use of student fees to reimburse a private citizen when the senate allocates activity fee money for the fees of guest speakers on campus, Reynolds said.

Another objection to the discount plan brought up at last week's senate meeting was that dorm-dwelling students, whose meals are provided under housing contracts, would be paying for other students' groceries.

LeVault said the discount includes lunchmeat and that many dorm-dwellers buy lunchmeat and other meats for snacks, and in that sense the discount would serve them, too.

Another senator argued that a store offering the discount would be given business for items other than meat and this would make it seem that Student Government is favoring the store.

Reynolds argues that this would allow the store to lower some prices and thus force other stores to lower their prices in order to compete.

"We will not give up and are definitely going to push the issue," LeVault said.

'Major developments' cited in Watergate by President

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon Tuesday said there have been "major developments" pointing toward the truth in the Watergate affair. He disclosed no details.

The President dropped his longstanding insistence that no administration officials were involved in the wiretapping case. He said he would suspend immediately any federal employee indicted in the case.

Nixon also capitulated to a special Senate investigating committee that has insisted, over his objections, that any White House aides summoned must give sworn testimony in public hearings.

He said his aides would appear and "answer fully all proper questions," while reserving the right to invoke executive privilege and remain silent on some specific inquiries.

In a three-minute statement at the White House, Nixon said he personally ordered an intensive new investigation into the raid on Democratic Party headquarters last June 17, because of serious charges raised in March.

"I can report today that there have been major developments in the case concerning which it would be improper to be more specific now, except to say that real progress has been made in finding the truth," Nixon said.

He answered no questions. The President said he ordered a second administration investigation of the Watergate affair on March 21 because of "serious charges which came to my attention, some of which were publicly reported."

The first White House probe was conducted by Nixon's official lawyer, John W. Dean III. Last Aug. 29 Nixon said Dean's investigation indicated that nobody at that time on the White House staff or in the administration was involved.

In recent weeks Dean himself, and others, have been implicated in hearsay testimony reportedly given in secret by James McCord, one of seven men convicted in last year's break-in and bugging of Democratic offices in the Watergate building.

Faculty Senate to back prof

According to the letter the senate will send to the board, the senate endorses the concerns of the grievance panel concerning the alleged alterations of the panel's recommendations.

"If the committee recommendation had been followed, Pearson would have been given tenure by virtue of the favorable vote of the (tenured faculty)," the letter states. "It was not followed, and tenure was denied."

Keith Leasure, assistant provost, told the senate that the committee report had been "seriously considered."

"It is the responsibility of the administrative officer whether or not recommendations must be accepted," Leasure said. "A committee report is completely advisory."

A memo presented to the senate with the faculty status committee's recommendation quoted Leasure as having told Ms. Eames that he had stricken the majority vote provision from the grievance committee report. He said he did so, according to the memo, in order not to "short circuit" the tenure process followed in Pearson's department.

According to the memo, Leasure said that "the chairman always has the responsibility for recommendation of tenure, and if he voluntarily binds himself to act on the vote of a committee, the administration claims that the decision is still his (the chairman's) and the responsibility cannot be diluted to the committee who advised him."

In other recommendations growing out of the Pearson case, the senate unanimously approved a proposal stating that "urgent" and "emphatic" representation be made to Willis Malone, vice president for academic affairs, asking that no further delays occur in implementing the grievance procedure and Judicial Review Board proposals of May 16, 1972.

The senate also approved a recommendation requesting all faculty members who have participated in grievance panels, or who have records of them, to submit material pertaining to operating procedures to the secretary of the senate.

Recommendations concerning the mail and reproduction services was delayed until the next meeting.

Another coed assaulted; rape attempt fails

By Tom Finn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An SIU coed was assaulted as she left Morris Library late Monday night and the description of the alleged rapist closely resembles that of a man who reportedly raped another student Friday, Carbondale Police said.

After leaving the library a few minutes before midnight, the woman began walking along the east side of the library. She told police that the assailant approached her from behind, grabbed her around the throat and pulled her to the ground.

She said she felt a cold metal object, possibly a knife, at her throat. The coed told police she did not get a close look at her attacker because her glasses were knocked to the ground in the struggle.

She said she escaped injury by telling the man that a friend inside the library would be coming out soon. The man then fled in the direction of South Poplar Street, she reported.

The woman described the attacker as a 6-foot, 20- to 23-year-old black with a medium complexion and a medium Afro haircut. He was neat in appearance, wore a hip-length maroon jacket, red, black and white pants and high-heeled shoes, which may have had taps.

The earlier attack also took place when the victim left Morris Library shortly after midnight Friday. The man continued to follow her as she entered the downtown area in an attempt to discourage him.

The coed said the man grabbed her when they reached the 700 block of South Illinois and dragged her behind 701 S. Illinois (formerly the Purple Mousetrap), where he raped her at knife point.

The woman described her assailant as black, 5-feet-10 to 6-feet, 20-25 years old with a short Afro haircut and acne-like scars on his face. She said he was neat in appearance and wore blue jeans and a short brown jacket.

Detective Lt. Edward Hogan said Monday that the description and method of operation seemed to indicate that the same man had committed both assaults.

"We're going to operate on that theory until we can disprove it," Hogan said.

Police so far have no leads in either case. Both women have examined police photograph files, but were unable to make any positive identifications.

Council puts $957,232 ceiling on Model Cities

By Monroe Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A budget ceiling of $957,232 was placed on the 1973-74 funding of Model Cities by the Carbondale City Council Monday night.

The council voted unanimously to approve the budget ceiling after hearing an expenditures report from Model Cities Director Robert Stalls and a request from Charles Simon, member of the Northeast Congress Community Organization, that Model Cities be funded at full level for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Stalls said that the $850,000 budget ceiling mandated by the council would cover the period between May 1, 1973 and April 30, 1974 and was adequate for funding approximately 80 per cent of the total Model Cities program.

He added, however, that additional monies were needed to carry some of the programs until the new funding becomes operative in May.

"It should be noted that 'wind down' costs of $7,232 will be incurred in addition to the ceiling of $950,000," Stalls said. "Consequently, the actual budget should be $957,232 for the 1973-74 fiscal year."

Simon pointed out to the council that no revenue sharing money was allotted to the Model Cities program and that most of the revenue sharing funds had already been allotted to the City's Capital Improvements program.

"I don't want to see $600,000 go into the capital improvements program at the expense of the social service programs in Model Cities," he said. "The Model Cities budget calls for $1.075 million to operate at full capacity. Some $740,000 has already been allotted, leaving a deficit of $327,000."

Simon requested that the city allot an additional $327,000 stating that "we legally and morally deserve it."

"Federal guidelines say that all citizens should get an equal share of revenue sharing dollars," he said, "and if the Northeast citizens do not receive any revenue sharing funds, then the city of Carbondale is discriminating against the residents of the Northeast area."

He said later that the Northeast Congress may bring charges of discrimination against the city.

Mayor Neal Eckert said that the council had two conflicting requests concerning Model Cities.

"We have a request from the (Model Cities) staff for $950,000 and a request from the Northeast for $1,075," he said.

Councilman George Karnes said the council needed more information before making a decision. He moved that the budget of $957,232 be approved. He indicated that it could be amended later if necessary.

Norvell Haynes, director of citizen participation, said the city had a "moral obligation to work with the Congress to bring about a social and economic change in the community."

Councilman Hans Fischer said the council had asked the community in point out the areas in the Model Cities program that could be cut-back with the least amount of damage to the overall program.

Simon said that any cut-back in the program's funds would mean that some citizens would lose their jobs.

"It's difficult to ask us which of us will go without a job, an income or whatever," he said. "We're looking at it from a human point of view rather than just figures on paper."

Fischer said that the program was designed to provide opportunities for the poor to escape from poverty and not to provide a few jobs for some residents.

"The program is geared to the entire citizenry," he said, "and not to those who are employed by the program."

Councilman Archie Jones later said that he was confused when he voted to approve the $957,232 Model Cities budget.

"I had the impression that we were also saying we'd fund the program at $1,075 million after this particular year," he said, adding that he did not intend to limit the Model Cities funds.

16 petitions signed out

Nine contend for student president

By Bob Grupp
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The number of candidates running for student president in the April 25 Student Government election grew to nine Tuesday.

Rick Weidon, from Carbondale, and David Kite, a senior majoring in home economics from Skokie, submitted the eighth and ninth petitions for the office.

John R. Schneider, a senior majoring in cinema and photography from Connersville, Ind., signed out the sixteenth petition for candidacy as president Tuesday. The number of candidates running for the office may be the largest in at least six years if all petitions are submitted by the 5 p.m. Wednesday deadline.

Kite said Tuesday he is running for office on an Apathy Party ticket. Doris Kaplan, administrative clerk in Student Activities, said the Apathy Party is a recognized student organization.

However, Election Commissioner Courtland Milloy, said Tuesday that the only recognized parties in this election are Unity, Action and Reform.

Milloy based his statement on Student Government by-laws that say "Campus political parties may form at anytime except four weeks prior to spring and fall elections. If the Parties are not on the ballot for three consecutive elections, they shall be revoked."

Apathy Party has not been on the ballot for three consecutive elections, Milloy said.

The number of candidates running for student vice president grew to four Tuesday as petitions came in from Garry Barker from Carbondale and Mark Stevens from Schaumburg. An additional eight petitions for the office have been signed out.

When petitions became available on April 4, there were 24 Student Senate seats in nine districts up for election. On April 13, Milloy said an additional two seats were added to the senate race.

Milloy said Tuesday that three more seats are up for election bringing the total number of seats open to 29. The available seats are in 10 different districts.

There are 19 candidates for the senate with an additional 37 petitions signed out.

The eight students submitting petitions for the senate Tuesday and the districts they are running in are as follows: Nate Stein, a junior majoring in accounting from Evanston, east side non-dorm; Rick Pere, a sophomore majoring in radio and television from DuQuoin, east side non-dorm; Gloria Underwood, a junior majoring in journalism from Mascouta, Brush Towers.

Walker to select trustees soon

Gov. Daniel Walker is expected to fill two spots on the Board of Trustees by next week, Andrew Leahy, Walker's liaison man for boards and commissions, said Tuesday.

"He (Walker) might have something to release by the end of the week, but I'm shooting for next week," Leahy said.

Leahy said he has sent the governor a list of 150 names for 11 vacancies on four boards: the SIU board, the Illinois Board of Higher Education, the Board of Regents and the Board of Governors.

Terms for SIU trustees Dr. Martin Van Brown, Carbondale, and Ivan A. Elliott Jr., Carmi, expired in January.

HEW delays employment response

By Gene Charleton
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) has granted SIU another delay in submitting a response to the recent report that the University's employment practices were not in compliance with HEW guidelines.

The HEW set Thursday as the new deadline for the University's reply to charges in a compliance review that women and minorities are "under-represented and under-utilized on the SIU faculty and staff."

The original deadline for the initial response to be submitted to the Chicago area HEW civil rights office was April 2. At that time, the University was granted a two-week delay until April 16.

Hollis Merritt, chairman of the Affirmative Action Council, said the extension had been granted to allow the University time to gather more complete information on certain aspects of the employment of women and minorities.

Merritt and SIU Legal Counsel John Huffman made the request to HEW officials.

HEW granted a second delay to the University Monday, Communications Director Don Hecke said Tuesday. He said the University had asked for a delay until Thursday to allow more time for preparation of the response, and because it conflicted with another hearing.

Huffman was unavailable for comment Tuesday afternoon.

Hecke said presentation Thursday will be made by Huffman and Merritt. He said Huffman will ask HEW officials if they have any objections to release of the response by SIU.

If HEW has no objection, the response will probably be released to the public Friday or early next week.

he said.

"The University does want to make it public," Hecke said.

HEW investigators were reported to have been in Carbondale last week collecting data on eight other cases of alleged discrimination.

The week-long investigation centered around cases filed in 1971, but which have never been pursued, Don Scott, chief HEW regional investigator from Chicago, said. All the complaints were filed by women.

Scott said he and Tonda Woolfolk were in Carbondale last week collecting background information on the cases. Scott would not name the women involved, but said that the cases deal with complaints about inequities in salary, promotion and tenure.

The eight cases, combined with others previously filed with HEW, brings the total to 12 now pending against SIU.

Question of amnesty

One aspect of the Vietnam war still looms in the minds of the American public and it has become of great concern. This is the controversy surrounding the question of granting amnesty for draft resisters and deserters.

Estimates indicate that there are over 70,000 young men who chose to leave the country rather than fight in Vietnam. Most of them currently reside in Canada, however, they are also scattered throughout other parts of the world.

The public attitude, including that of President Nixon, seems rather hard-hearted toward the idea of granting a general amnesty. A recent Harris survey in March revealed that 67 per cent of the public was opposed to a general amnesty while only 24 per cent favored it. A previous survey taken in August of 1972 showed that 60 per cent was opposed while 27 per cent favored it. A 1972 Gallup poll indicated similar findings.

This tendency away from granting amnesty is not unique to the Vietnam conflict. Throughout the history of the United States, a gradual hardening has occurred.

There was no amnesty after the Korean War. President Truman, after World War II, pardoned only about 1,500 of the more than 15,000 convicted of violating the draft laws. And this was primarily for religious convictions only. Calvin Coolidge, however, granted amnesty to men who deserted since the World War I Armistice.

Others before Coolidge were likewise generous when it came to granting amnesty. Lincoln granted amnesty to Union deserters during the last year of the Civil War, provided they would rejoin their regiments. Even George Washington was noted for granting amnesty. He pardoned all participants of the 1774 Whiskey Rebellion.

Opponents of amnesty feel the dead will lose their honor if amnesty is given. People who obey the law must pay the price, why shouldn't the deserters and resisters who break the law? Such logic is fine, but who can say that they have not already paid a price if their motives were sincere? Most of these men placed their conscience above the dictates of the government in making their decision. And dictates of government have not always been beyond question. In the Nuremberg war crime trials, the claim by some of Hitler's lieutenants that they were only following orders was rejected.

Will society be better off if all resisters and deserters must go to jail?

Senator John Stennis, head of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Curtis Tar, selective service director, feel that granting of amnesty would set a precedent which would be remembered in a future crisis. Anyone could get out of fighting a war he didn't want to fight, secure in the belief he would win amnesty. But, history proves this an invalid assumption. One can only imagine George Washington's reaction to this belief when he granted amnesty for the first time.

Several legislators including Senator Robert Taft of Ohio proposed bills to clear draft resisters of any offense provided they are willing to perform three years of alternative public service. But, if we are going to pardon some, let's pardon all and close the book forever. What makes a deserter subject to greater punishment than the draft resister? The deserter's feelings about the war may have evolved only after he witnessed it first hand, while the resister's opinions were established prior to serving.

Now is the time for a great act of charity by President Nixon and the American people. For the Greek word amnesty itself implies forgetfulness. We need to abandon our differences and strive toward bringing a divided nation back together. What would be more ironic than if we can make peace with the enemy, but not with ourselves?

'Too few Donaths'

To the Daily Egyptian

As a federal prisoner and avid reader of the Egyptian, I couldn't help notice Randy Donath's enlightened opinions on the nation's prison system and its treatment of criminal offenders.

Donath's obvious awareness makes me wonder if he doesn't live down the range from me somewhere—a prisoner right here in the 'control unit' as I find no quarrel over what he has said about prisons and prisoners. The injustices are manifold and rehabilitation 'is' a myth—a vast citizenry rip-off—an unconscious public nemesis. How can the criminal metamorphose into a responsible and protective human being, when at each molting, he/she is met with inhuman retribution or traumatized with deleterious pseudo-behavioral modification programming? Rehabilitation is a lie and there is no prisoner synthesis.

Prisoners are rebelling—saying: no more, I've had enough!—against inhumane treatment. It is blatantly obvious, yet the middle-class unconscious citizens, the elite, and the crime-in-the-suites-law-and-order freaks bare down harder: they cry for stiffer sentencing, the reestablishment of the death penalty and to quit molly-coddling offenders. (molly-coddle indeed!) This is absurd and naive—a sign of decadence and a cancerous neoplasia.

If society won't listen to its prisoners plight, then perhaps, just perhaps free people will listen to the too few Randy Donath's—listen before it's too late and sanguine color flows out of America's prisons—spilling into the streets in angry currents.

Randy's mind-camera pans prison existence in light of truth. I would like to see him at the head of SIU's free school 'prison project', once Shelly Rosenzweig departs campus for greener pastures and in quest for a higher social consciousness. Never could more be wrong with Marion prison, nor never could its prisoners need more, the 'prison project.' Don't let it die brothers and sisters!

An explanation

To the Daily Egyptian:

Because of possible misunderstandings about our aims and criticisms, I would like to further explain the goals of CISCO, Citizens Involved to Save Crab Orchard.

Under the terms of the legislation which authorized establishment of the Crab Orchard Creek Project and Illinois Ordinance Plant within the Department of the Interior in 1947, Crab Orchard is to serve four principal purposes: wildlife management, development of industrial potential, enhancement of agricultural resources, and recreation. Further uses of the Crab Orchard Refuge as an educational resource have long been established. CISCO, as an umbrella organization of interested local groups and individuals, seeks to find a means of continuing the full development of all Crab Orchard's assets within the framework of a long-range master plan.

The need for this citizen's organization arises due to the Department of Interior's designation of the wildlife management function as having priority over the other aspects of the Refuge and a scarcity of funds in the Division of Wildlife Refuges. This allocation of scarce funds to one priority causes the other uses to suffer from neglect. Since all the aspects of the Refuge are fully compatible, and since all aspects are vital to the economic, recreational, and educational health of Southern Illinois, we, as citizens, feel we must put Crab Orchard back on its original course as a multifunctional resource of the total community.

Our program is not to criticize the local management of the Refuge, who have in fact done an outstanding job within the framework of their priorities and fund limitations. We do seek to explore every possibility for developing and implementing a long-range, comprehensive master plan for the Crab Orchard Refuge. A plan that is responsive to the needs of the people of Southern Illinois and responsible to both the limitations and the potentials of the land and water resources of the Refuge area.

We welcome any group or individual who would like to help in our efforts. Ours is not a short term project. We are optimistic that with persistent effort we can help return Crab Orchard to the facility it was meant to be and that the citizens of Southern Illinois expect.

Jack Wides
CISCO Chairman

Doggone it!

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is an open letter to all dog owners on campus in protest of the way you chain your dogs while in class. I recently noticed an example of this that I would call inhumane. In front of Morris Library an Irish setter was tied to the chain fence in such a way that he would not lie down without stretching his neck longer than would be comfortable. Nevertheless, the dog was lying down, which would indicate that he had been there for a while. The day also happened to be a warm and sunny one, and the dog was chained in the direct sun.

Unfortunately this type of cruelty is common on this campus. What makes it even worse is the fact that it doesn't have to be this way. Here are a few common sense suggestions that would prevent this. 1. If possible, leave your dog at home. 2. If you must bring your dog with you, you'll have to chain it up. Use a chain at least six feet long. This will allow the dog some freedom of movement, and would have allowed the Irish setter mentioned above the pleasure of being able to lie down in comfort. 3. On hot days, or any sunny day for that matter, put the dog in the shade. This will help prevent him from overheating, and again make his wait more comfortable. Also, it would be appreciated if you didn't bring your dogs into the classrooms with you. Certain people, myself not included, are allergic to dogs, and the presence of dogs can be annoying to people who are afraid of them. They can and do disrupt the class which, again, is annoying. In conclusion, I would like to say that myself and others would appreciate a little more consideration toward the dogs and us.

Psychologists concerned for POWs' well-being

(Editor's Note: The following article was reprinted from a bulletin of the American Psychological Association. Dr. Robert Kelman is a member of the Association's Board of Social and Ethical Responsibility for Psychology.)

It is clear that the public context for the homecoming of the POWs is primarily based on political and public-relations considerations. The POWs have been assigned the role of heroes in a war that has no heroes—the central role in an elaborate drama, staged to provide justification for the President's policy, to create the illusion of victory, and to arouse a sense of patriotic fervor. There can be little doubt that the POWs are being used for the political manipulation of the American public. Whether this use is likely to be directly detrimental to their psychological well-being is a matter of judgment and speculation.

From all indications, the public context of the homecoming deviated from the procedures recommended by the psychologists, working on Operation Homecoming and adopted by the Prisoner of War Missing in Action Task Force (in the Department of Defense, DOD) itself, which envisaged a quiet, private homecoming, without fanfare and crowds, in order to insure that the returnees would not be psychologically overwhelmed. It seems the procedures that the psychological consultants and the Task Force considered to be in the best interests of the men were overruled by the political and public-relations objectives of higher political and military authorities.

Dr. Kelman then raises questions about the possible psychological consequences of the use to which the returning POWs are being put.

By casting them into the roles of heroes, are the authorities reducing their capacity to come to terms with their experiences in their own individual ways?

Will they be hemmed in by a publicly established image—an image of the brave warrior, the personification of the national honor, the living proof of the justness of the American cause—to which they have now become committed and that they will have to maintain and continually justify?

Have they been prevented from confronting guilt that they may feel thus integrating and building on their experiences as both perpetrators and victims of the cruelties of the war?

Has the hero image to which they have been assigned bound them to an unrealistic conception of themselves, the world, and recent history, and thus estranged them even further from the society to which they have returned after several years' absence?

Dr. Kelman explains he is not questioning the competence of the psychologist and related professionals involved in developing the homecoming plans; however, he asserts, "the criteria by which they judge the best interests of the men are probably influenced by their view of the proper public image of a returning POW, and their admittedly sincere desire to do what is best for the men may well be outweighed by the Pentagon's often demonstrated desire to do what is best for the military, its power and its reputation."

Furthermore, he adds, "it has become increasingly clear that many important decisions are out of the hands of the medical staff or even of the DOD Task Force itself, but are made by military information officers under instructions from higher military authorities and the highest political authorities."

Dr. Kelman's (and the Board's) increasing concern was heightened by the DOD's refusal to reveal any of their plans for medical and psychological care for the POWs. Below he describes their meeting at the Pentagon:

"When we asked by what criteria psychiatrists would decide when a man is ready for release, we were told that this is a technical question which would have to be answered by our professional colleagues—the very people who had already indicated that they were not free to provide information and had instead referred us to the Pentagon. When we asked about this role of the escort to be assigned to each man—as an example of a non-medical issue that concerned us—we were given numerous answers, some of which dealt with the crucial questions of how these escorts had been selected and trained and what would be their major preoccupation during the many hours that they would be spending with the men placed in their charge. Our request for some written documents that outlined the procedures to be used and the rationale behind them was turned down. We were assured that the documents were not classified; they were just not available."

"The limited information that has been available to us has raised more questions than it has answered," Kelman writes. "These include questions about the training and background of the individual escorts assigned to each man and the nature and purpose of the extensive debriefing that they have been conducting, about the rationale for isolating the returnees and strictly monitoring their communications and social interactions and the possible consequences of such procedures, about the goals and assumptions of psychiatric treatment during the period of hospitalization, about the nature of the briefing and debriefing procedures conducted in the course of the hospitalization and their effects of a man's movement through the rehabilitation process, and about the criteria for determining when a man is ready to make his own decisions about whom to talk to and what to say and when he is ready to be released. There may well be sound and reassuring answers to these questions, but there are good reasons for raising them and, indeed, for viewing their implications with alarm."

With these questions yet to be answered and the "one justification for secrecy—the argument that publication of plans may endanger the further release of prisoners—now irrelevant," Kelman explains the Board of Social and Ethical Responsibility is going to continue its investigation in hopes they might still have "some bearing on the treatment of the returnees."

Smoking has been cut down in classrooms to some extent to that, I am thankful. However, I am tired of "putting up" with others' abominable habits. I also chew gum. And I like to visit with friends. But, people, will you please take into consideration that there are some who ARE interested in getting their money's worth?

New policy

To the Daily Egyptian:

My wife and I, and guests, were turned away from the laboratory theater play, "Old Times" on Friday night because we were three minutes late in arriving. We were told that the director would not allow latecomers to enter.

We pointed out to the individual who refused us admittance that there had been no notice given regarding this new theater policy. We also expressed concern regarding other latecomers who might have driven considerable distances to attend the play, at least six other people were refused admittance at 8:03. Satisfactory answers were not given to our questions. A simple refund of ticket price does not seem just in this case for individuals who might be unavoidably detained in arriving on time; the inconvenience involved should be taken into account in formulating this new attendance policy.

While we can sympathize with the wishes of the director in this case, we must also point out from attending numerous SIU theater productions over the last three years that they rarely have started at the designated time and that latecomers have always been admitted, even when they have arrived 20 to 30 minutes late. Also no public notice was made regarding this new policy for latecomers.

Given that the attendance at theater productions has been relatively sparse this year, it would seem that this rather heavy-handed approach to the late arrival problem may well prove detrimental to theater attendance in the future. Indeed, future theater patrons may wish to take this new policy into account prior to purchasing theater tickets in the future.

Thursday's Convo to feature contemporary dance, music

By Bill O'Brien
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Eric Hawkins—billed as the most American dancer of our new American dance—will bring his company of dancers to Convocation, 8 p.m. Friday in Shryock Auditorium.

Hawkins, according to advance press releases, expresses the fierce individualism of America's pioneer spirit.

"With the passion of his Southwest heritage he feels American men have their own virility and it is time for it to be expressed," the releases say.

One critic summed up the new "exciting" masculinity of Hawkins' dancing by comparing it to a race horse unlike so much other male dancing that often suggests trained poodles.

Appearing with Hawkins will be set three films

The Indo-American Friendship Association, which plans entertainment programs for students, announced a revised program of three films scheduled for April 20, 27 and May 4.

On April 30, the film "Anupama" (non-parallel) will be shown and "Apna-desh" (my country) is scheduled for April 27. "Sharmili" is to be shown on May 4.

The three films will be presented at 8:00 p.m. in Davis Auditorium, for $1.50 each.

composer Lucia Dlugoszewska, recognized by critics and other composers as one of the major forces in contemporary music.

"Her love of the poetic immediacy of sound has led Miss Dlugoszewska to the invention of the timbre piano," releases say.

"Unlike the prepared piano, her technique enters the area of sensitivity characterizing stringed instruments through new devices of bowing, and uses bows of glass, metal, felt, wood, skin and wire."

Hawkins has toured the U.S. and Europe since 1957. Philosopher F.S.C. Northrop of Yale University has singled Hawkins out as the undisputed leader of the new American dance and the most significant artist of the American culture.

Admission is free and open to the public.

Free concert Wednesday

The SIU* Orchestra, under the direction of James Stroud, will present a concert at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Shryock Auditorium.

The program will begin with "Individuation," composed by Robert Chamberlain who will also guest conduct.

Stroud will conduct Bartok's "Concerto for Viola and Orchestra," Bernard McWilliams, soloist. This was Bartok's last work before his death. It was eventually orchestrated and reconstructed by Tibor Serly.

Beethoven's "Symphony No. 2 in D Major" offers a dance-like, bright and brilliant spirited finale to the program, conductor Stroud said.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Week dedicated to women highlighted by art activities

Wednesday is the last day of the art exhibit being shown at the Caribbeade Women's Center (CWC), 404 W. Walnut St., as part of "A Room of One's Own," a week of art activities dedicated to women.

The theme of the activities, "A Room of One's Own," was taken from a Virginia Woolf essay which says that two things that women need to become creative artists on their own are income of their own and a room of their own.

The CWC is providing space for women to talk about themselves and portray themselves through the arts.

Activities for the remainder of the week are a drama presentation, "Up Against the Wall Mother," which is a dramatized collection of works and poetry readings about women in literature from early Greece to present day.

"Up Against the Wall Mother" will be presented at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Unitarian Fellowship, 301 Elm St. There is no admission charge and both men and women are invited to attend.

On Thursday, there will be a reading of original works of poetry at the Student Christian Foundation, 813 S. Illinois Ave. by six area women. These women have been meeting at the CWC for several months critiquing and commenting about their work. They are: Brod Riley, Elaine Dallman, Mary Stearnes, Esther Siderman, Elizabeth Nall and Nora Jones.

The readings will begin at 8:30 p.m.

For more information call the CWC, 649-4215.

Red Cross seeks blood donations from Samaritans in Student Center

By Jan Tranchita
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

If Wednesday, Thursday or Friday is your day to play Good Samaritan and you need something good to do, there are still plenty of open time slots for donating blood during the Red Cross Blood Drive from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center Ballrooms.

Although 750 students have signed up to donate a pint each, more blood donors are still needed to reach the campus goal of 850 units, Jackie Clark, blood drive publicity director, said Tuesday.

"Approximately 25 per cent of those students who have already signed up to donate blood will be turned away" due to high or low blood pressure, recent illnesses, colds or under certain types of medication, she said.

Students wishing to donate blood who do not have appointments should wait in line sometime between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., Ms. Clark advised. Earlier or later than that, the donation schedules are too filled up, she added.

The blood drive is being sponsored by Angel Flight, Arnold Air Society and the SIU fraternities and sororities, she said. Volunteers from these organizations will be reminding all students with donor appointments by phone sometime before their scheduled appointment times.

All donors will receive free blood for themselves or members of their immediate family if the need arises for one year, Ms. Clark explained. If the donor wants to donate his blood to a particular person, when signing up to donate he should tell the volunteers that person's name and the hospital where he receives blood, Ms. Clark explained.

The need for blood in Illinois is critical with the incorporation of new blood laws by the legislature, she said in an earlier interview. The new laws state that no blood can be bought from "professional donors" or brought into Illinois from outside the state.

All blood used in Illinois must now come from donations, she said.

Red Cross volunteers and nurses will staff the blood donations. For more information contact the ROTC office at 453-3481.

Ananda Marga Society plans protest

By Dave Stearns
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Members of the Ananda Marga Yoga Society in Carbondale will travel to Washington D.C. for a protest at the Indian embassy Monday, April 23, Ross Scalsie, Midwest coordinator of Ananda Marga said.

The society will protest the imprisonment and poisoning of P.R. Sarkar, founder of the Ananda Marga Yoga Society.

"The goals of the protest will be to gain attention and support so that Sarkar is given medical attention by his own doctor, that the poisoning is investigated, and that Sarkar is released on bail," Scalsie said.

"There are 6,000 to 7,500 members of the society in the United States. Members in the western half of the country will protest in San Francisco and members in the East will protest in Washington D.C., Scalsie said.

He estimated that 3,000 to 6,000 will be in Washington D.C., about 20 of them from Carbondale.

"Depending on the Washington

D.C. regulations, we plan to meet near the White House and march to the Indian embassy for a peaceful rally and a group meditation," he said.

The story behind Sarkar's imprisonment was related to Scalsie by Ananda Marga newsletters.

"There are several million members of Ananda Marga in India, and their policy of social service has made them popular. But in refusing to be cooperative to the government's left wing parties and corruption syndrome, Ananda Marga has been perceived as a threat to them. The government has attempted to defame and remove Ananda Marga."

Sarkar was imprisoned 14 months ago with 200 charges, and all but one, inspiring others to commit murder, have been dropped.

"This charge has now been referred to a court which will decide if the prosecution even has a valid case, since some of the prosecuting witnesses have contradictory testimonies."

"With the prosecution's case in danger, Sarkar was removed to solitary confinement and poisoned through his food. He is in serious condition and has received no medical care since his poisoning a few weeks ago," Scalsie said.

In protest, a yoga monk in India sacrificed his life by burning himself, and 17 of his fellow workers have been arrested and charged with his murder.

"By simultaneous protests in Washington D.C. and San Francisco, we wish to call attention to this outrage," Scalsie said.

Year-round school proposed

By Rafael Kilgus
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Eleven grants for the study of a year-round school program which may alleviate overcrowding in state public schools, were awarded recently to 19 school districts by Michael J. Bakalis, state superintendent of public instruction. No Carbondale districts received grants.

Bakalis said the full year school is not a panacea that will solve all the economic and learning problems in a school district. But, he said, "the flexibility gained by the year-round school opens many opportunities to provide a more effective and individualized learning environment as well as more efficient utilization of existing school facilities."

Bakalis said the grants—which total $91,300—will provide school districts with 80 per cent of the funds necessary to study the feasibility of adopting the full year program in one or more schools in the district. These studies must include the educational program, building and space needs, administrative and personnel costs, transition costs and plans to provide equal educational opportunity. Bakalis added.

Bakalis said the year-round program does not increase the number of days a student attends school. Instead, the 12-month plan requires each student to attend school the traditional 180-185 days and staggers the vacation periods. In this way, a certain percentage of students is on vacation throughout the year. This plan allows a greater number of students to attend school in the existing facilities.

At present, five Chicago public schools and the entire Valley View Unit District operate on the full year plan.

Annual dietetic meet set April 27

By Jan Tranchita
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The annual spring assembly of the Illinois Dietetic Association (IDA) will be held from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. April 27 in the Student Center Auditorium.

Members from across the state have been invited to "come and enjoy the rugged beauty of the southern section of Illinois, softened by flowers in bloom and temperatures near 70 degrees," according to the IDA Bulletin.

Lois Brumitt, assistant manager of the SIU Food Service and president of the Southern Illinois Dietetic Association (SIDA), will preside at the morning sessions.

Thomas M. Brooks, dean of home economics, will welcome guests to the sessions. Other talks include "Health Systems for the Future," by Irwin M. Jarrett, associate dean of the School of Medicine; "Safety and Health Laws," by Gola Waters, assistant dean of the School of Business; and "Effects of Food Labeling Regulations on Everyday Foods, Special Dietary Foods and Nutritional Supplements," by Herbert P. Saret, vice president of nutritional science resources of the Mead Johnson Research Center.

The afternoon session will include

"New Developments to Watch in Food Service Management," by Arthur Avery, director of institutional management research for Purdue University; and "Problem Oriented Medical Records," by W.P. Mazur, clinical director of Osawatimie State Hospital in Kansas.

Glenna Bishop, of the Herrin Hospital staff and president-elect of SIDA, will preside over the afternoon sessions.

Ann Kneswitz, of Carbondale, who is a dietitian at Marion Memorial Hospital and president of IDA, will direct the business meeting and luncheon.

Friday last day for ASPC petitions

Friday is the last day to turn in petitions for nomination to the Administrative Professional Staff Council (APSC) and for APSC representatives to the University Senate.

The petitions must be submitted by 5 p.m. to the Personnel Office, 205 S. Elizabeth St.

Balle Jacobini, chairman of the election committee of the ASPC, said the petitions require 12 signatures to be valid.

There are four divisions in the constituency of the ASPC: Administrative—Business, Academic Affairs, Student Affairs, and Public Services.

Each of the divisions will elect one member to the University

Senate and one member to the council. Term of office for the senate is one year and three years for the council.

A resignation on the council from the Student Affairs division created a vacancy in that division which normally would not have occurred until next year.

For additional information call Mrs. Jacobini, 453-4351; Louis Freitag, 453-2344; or Don Ward, 453-3334.

$1,024 in pledges raised

at Easter Seal cablethon

A cablethon to raise money for the Easter Seal Society (ESS) netted a total of $1,024.50 in pledges, Mrs. Mildred L. Holland, executive director said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

The telethon was presented on channel 7, Cable-TV April 14, 1 to 10 p.m. The proceeds will be used for physical, speech and hearing therapy for equipment like wheelchairs and walkers and for summer camping for 50 to 75 youngsters at Little Giant, a part of SIU Outdoor Laboratory.

So far the ESS has collected $542 of the total. Anyone who pledged money to Easter Seal Society may send it to ESS, P.O. Box 3249, Carbondale, Mrs. Holland said.

Mrs. Holland was "very pleased with the public's reaction" and said people are already interested in doing another telethon next year. This is the first time such a show has been done with Carbondale residents for the ESS, Mrs. Holland said.

Student Senate meeting cancelled

Wednesday's meeting of the Student Senate has been cancelled, Marianne Rosenzweig, student vice president, said.

The senate will resume its regular meeting schedule at 7:30 p.m. April 25 in the Student Center.

Student recalls ordeal with spider

By Jan Tranchita
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Charles R. Gray, a doctoral candidate in special education, had developed a special relationship with the spiders he'd seen roaming around his upstairs apartment. He left them alone, and the spiders never bothered him. They never bothered him that is, until the last week of winter quarter.

About 2 a.m. one Monday night I was viciously and brutally attacked in my apartment," Gray said in mock seriousness. What had happened, however, was that while Gray was studying at his desk he felt something crawl up his leg. He thought it was just a wrinkle in his pants leg falling loose.

But when he stood up, something bit him behind the knee.

"It felt like a pin sticking me. I'd seen the spiders around the apartment, but I thought I had a pretty good relationship with them," he said. At the time, Gray said he didn't think he had been bitten by a spider.

"My mother was bitten by a spider in bed which, of course, is much more romantic than being bitten in the hallway," Gray joked. His mother had rolled over and was bitten by a brown recluse spider on her forehead, he added.

Gray said he knew the spiders in his apartment were some type of recluse spider. But he didn't know until after the bite that these "friends" were poisonous.

By the next evening, the pain was so bad I could hardly walk," Gray recalled. He was sick to his stomach and was breaking out in cold sweats.

After photographing the developing wound on his upper calf, Gray limped to the Health Service.

The doctor told me it would get much worse. If I'd come in within 24 hours of the bite I'd have gotten a shot of cortisone to soothe the inflamed tissues," he explained.

Gray, with a background in zoology, said he was never really frightened by spiders.

"But now it's like a ritual every morning. I shake my shoes and my shirt and pants," he said.

Gray was bitten by the brown recluse spider, genus-Loxosles, spide-reclusa.

Charles R. Gray

Tom Bevitt, director of rat and pest control for Carbondale, said the recluse spider was not common to this area until two years ago.

"This is the most dangerous spider in the area," Bevitt said. "However they are usually found in reclusive places—under boards and in closets, like the name implies." The spiders don't go around looking for people to bite, he added.

Consequently, there is no need to wage "war" on the recluse spider, although it can cause serious injury, he said.

"People have to learn to live with nature and identify the individual spiders," Bevitt added. Recluse spiders have a violin marking on a one-half inch body with legs about three-fourths of an inch long, Bevitt said.

More cases of recluse spider bites were reported during fall, Bevitt said. He cautioned people who go walking through wooded areas to wear socks and boots to avoid bites.

When Gray admitted himself to the Health Service infirmary, four days after the bite, red, blue and purplish streaks had started running up his leg. The calf was swollen twice its size and had taken on a yellowish hue.

"There was no way I could really walk around," Gray said. "My own leg was a clinically interesting specimen," the Kinnansville native added.

Bevitt said Gray's leg had developed a condition known as skin trum antibiotic and some type of enzyme injections to retard any further deterioration of his leg. The Gray stayed in the infirmary for five days and received a broad spectrum antibiotic and some type of enzyme injections to retard any further deterioration of his leg. The skin had begun to pull away from the muscle and had become blackened around the bite when he admitted himself to the Health Service.

The doctor told Gray there was no proven antidote anywhere. Supposedly, the poison is ten times as deadly as the bite of a rattlesnake, although there is not as much of it, Gray said.

The doctor told Gray that the spider could be deadly for the landlord's children, who are under two years of age, Gray said.

Gray's landlord had the apartment fumigated, Gray said.

Bevitt said the spiders had to be professionally exterminated because they have different characteristics than ordinary insects.

The pesticide people warned Gray's landlord that if one spider is found in a particular place, more are likely to be there.

"But I call hold to the conviction that spiders do more good than harm," Gray said.

The recluse variety is not an aggressive spider, it tried to stay out of the way, Gray said.

"It's not a hygienic problem either," he added. "They are compatible with a person's living habitat," Gray explained, provided the person and spider don't get in each other's way.

Gray said he has always been fascinated with snakes and spiders.

Draft abolishment leaves two grads free of service

Now that the draft is abolished, two SIU graduates are no longer obliged to work for the government.

Steve Short, public relations coordinator at Newman Center, and Frank Russell, executive secretary at Newman Center, are classified I-O (conscientious objector) with the selective service.

However, since they have never received official work orders from the government Russell said they are not obliged to serve two years of alternate service at the present time.

Neither of them, however, will be leaving Newman Center, where they have been performing alternate service since January.

"I'm going to stay here for awhile," Short said. "I've got programs started that I'd like to see through." Both Short and Russell, who were opposed to the military and the war in Vietnam, decided to become conscientious objectors when they were issued low lottery numbers.

"If I had a number around 300, there would have been no need to do anything about the draft," Short said. "But with a low lottery number of 52 chances were pretty good that I would have to go into the army."

He said that entering the army would have gone against his conscience.

"Going into the military was totally against everything I've ever done," Short said. "The whole reason for the military is to learn to beat up on somebody else."

Russell, whose lottery number is 4, became a conscientious objector because he is opposed to the war.

"I did it to prove the point that war in general is wrong," he said. "This was the only way to protest the war and still make something of myself."

Short and Russell said their families were opposed to them becoming conscientious objectors.

"It was a blow to everyone in the family when I decided to become a C.O.," Russell said. "After the shock was over, however, they really helped because they believed that I was sincere."

Russell said his father, who was a naval officer for 20 years, and has worked as a consultant for the Department of Defense since his retirement from the navy, helped him the most.

"Dad wrote a letter for me to present to my draft board," he said. Short said his parents did not know if he was doing the right thing.

"At first they thought I was crazy," he said. "I don't think they're very proud of it, but once they saw it was going to work out, they learned to accept it."

Both Russell and Short said they are glad that the war in Viet Nam is over.

"I'm glad the war is over. I think very few people would not be glad," Russell said. "However, the war has caused apathy and has taken a lot of lives. We have to repair the damage that's been done."

Moreover, they both agreed that amnesty should be granted to draft deserters.

"I think they've gone through enough by leaving the country, and should be looked upon as sufficient punishment," Short said.

Deserters that want to re-enter the country should be allowed to with no strings attached, Russell said.

"A truly great president would grant amnesty," he said. "With no amnesty there will be a greater division in the country than there was during the Civil War."

"The government is able to forgive the enemy so it should make peace with its own country," Russell said.

Short and Russell appeared on radio station WILY in Centralia on Feb. 2 and on WGGH in Marion on Jan. 8.

"We did it to reaffirm our own feelings about what we've done," Short said. "And to present our ideas to a large audience."

Short graduated from SIU with a degree in radio and television in December, 1972.

Russell graduated from SIU in August, 1972 with a degree in sociology, and will return this summer to get his masters degree.

If you think the Seminary is a place of study and meditation, you're right. But there is so much more.

As a Paulist you become involved from the start.

We were founded with the belief that each man has a place. Each man has a job. Sometimes, many jobs. And each contributes his own unique talents and is given the freedom and the support he needs to achieve his goals.

The Paulist is a man on the move. His mission is to people, particularly the people of North America. The issues and problems we face today—ignorance, poverty, peace, war—must be the concern of the Church.

Wherever the Paulist student serves the Christian Community—in a parish or an inner city school, a youth center or a campus, or in communications, he is concerned. Involved. Right now.

When you commit yourself to the Paulists, it isn't a someday thing. It's today.

Reunion draws former tracksters

Other men present for the SIU-Illinois meet included Sam Denoal, a 1967 graduate who ran in the 500- and 220-yard dashes, Allan Gelo, a middle-distance runner in the early 1960's, sprinter John Sanders who participated in the same period, 1960 grad Charles Warren who long-jumped and high-jumped, and 1973 graduate Larry Cascio who competed in the pole vault.

Two more noteworthy additions to the Track Lettermen's Reunion were Sam Silas and Tom Ashman. Silas, now a resident of Carbondale, threw the shotput and discus between 1960-62 before being drafted by professional football's San Francisco 49ers.

Ashman, a high-jumper, placed fifth in the NCAA trials in 1966.
Then the meet and one-day reunion ended, but Low Haring and his assistant, Andrew Dooley, think that the efforts to stir enthusiasm in SIU's present track program among the alumni were not in vain.

Stumpf earned all-America honors by finishing fifth in the 167-pound division of the 1973 NCAA championship at Seattle, Wash.

Towers signs local prep star

Jack Warren, from West Frankfort, has signed a football letter of intent to attend SIU.
Saluki head coach Dick Towers announced the signing.
"Jack has as much or more potential than anybody we've signed this year," Towers said of the three-sport West Frankfort prospect. "He has the ability to become one of the all-time great Southern Illinois athletes."
The 6-0, 210-pound Warren started at tailback three seasons for coach Paul Grammer at West Frankfort, rushing for more than 1,000 yards each year.
He also lettered three years in basketball and track.

SIU Judo Club wins first place at Alton-YMCA

Reunion day stirs Southern track nostalgia

By Jim Braun
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Seated at two adjacent tables in the Student Center's Oasis Room Saturday afternoon, men from all parts of the nation and of all ages sat and talked between bites — mostly about track.

They were there because Southern Illinois track coach Lew Hartzog had designated Saturday as "SIU Track Lettermen's Reunion Day." Hartzog had sent invitations by mail to all former SIU tracksters to attend the SIU-Illinois clash later that night at McAndrew Stadium.

Even though Southern later lost that contest, 74-71, the oldtimers seemed to be enjoying their brief one-day reunion on campus.

"Could you please pass the salt over here?" Glenn "Abe" Martin asked his long-time buddy Jim Lauder, who was seated beside him.

Both of the men, now retired, had been teammates on the football and track teams between the years 1930-32, when the school was known as "Southern Illinois Normal University" (SINU).

Martin stayed at SINU after graduation, and during his tenure as athletic director, intramural coordinator, and head coach in football, basketball, and baseball, saw SIU become SIU in 1948.

Lauder left for Philadelphia, where he entered the business field. But he admitted that Hartzog's letter to attend

Sizzling Salukis burn Badgers, 7 - 2

By Stan Kosinski
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The Saluki baseball squad added another link to its chain of successive victories Tuesday afternoon by defeating Wisconsin 7-2.

The game lasted seven and one-third innings before being called because of rain.

SIU's 12th straight victory raised its season's mark to 14-2 while the Badgers fell to 3-4.

The magic number now is 4 as the Salukis attempt to equal the 16-game winning streak record set in 1964.

Although Wisconsin has two more chances at the sizzling Salukis, Wednesday in a doubleheader beginning at 1 p.m., Mother Nature will have to give them a little aid.

The field is in poor condition, because of the amount of rain this month, and the game will hinge on whether or not the sun can dry it enough for play.

The game is still scheduled to be played.

Scott Waltemate, who had come off the sick roster recently, received the Saluki win. His record, the winningest on the staff, is now 4-0. In the six innings Waltemate pitched, he allowed two runs, eight hits, struck out two and walked three.

Jim Bokelmann took over until the rain caught SIU. In his 1 and one-third innings, Bokelmann gave up no runs, allowed two hits, and struck out one.

Both SIU and Wisconsin connected for 10 hits. However, SIU committed no errors while the Badgers fumbled the ball five times.

The Badgers produced the first scare of the game when the second batter Lee Bauman walked. This set up the first run as Steve Bennet singled, scoring Bauman from first. However, it was the only dent Wisconsin could make until the fifth inning when catcher Greg Makiberg blasted a 370-foot home run over the leftfield fence.

The Badgers' only scoring threat came in the seventh inning when Bauman reached on an infield hit and first baseman Steve Bennet drilled a single.

However, Waltemate escaped without injury when rightfielder Fred Spytak hit into the only double-play of the game.

After Wisconsin's one run first, SIU retaliated by scoring twice. Third baseman Bert Newman, who is currently leading the Salukis in batting average (.438), pounded a single and stole second-base. First baseman Mike Wilbins waited for a walk.

With men on first and second, Joe Wallis came to the plate. Wallis sent a deep fly into rightfield that kept Wilbins glued to first but advanced Newman to third.

Catcher Larry "Moose" Caluffetti took his turn at bat, but Badger pitcher Andy Otting wanted to clean up a base before he dealt with the "Moose."

In an attempt to pick off Wilbins, he threw wild to first and by the time the play had ended, Wilbins was perched on second and Newman had scored.

Caluffetti could only pop the ball up to the second baseman for out No. 2.

Leftfielder Steve Shartzter, who hit safely twice in four appearances, received the second RBI with a single. However, he was picked off leaning on first to retire the side.

In the second inning, Gerry Leddin, who hit two-for-two and received two RBIs, scored after hitting a single. Wilbins sacrificed Leddin home with a long flyball to centerfield. One run was all the Salukis could muster.

In the fourth inning, Shartzter and Howard Mitchell scored. The other two Saluki runs crossed the plate in the sixth inning. Mitchell scored again followed by rightfielder Ken Kral.

The SIU-Wisconsin baseball confrontation was the first for both schools.

the reunion didn't arrive until last Friday. He took a plane from the East and arrived that night.

"I'm glad that I decided to come," Lauder said at the table. "It should be a very exciting meet from what I hear."

Others attended — 13 in all — like Emel Wiggins, a distance runner who graduated in 1933. Wiggins went on from his alma mater to coach at Kirkwood (Mo.) High School for 26 years.
